many years ago many many years ago birds werent what they are today they were featherless naked little animals without wings they were quite a disturbing sight in those days many many years ago there was a little town known as the place where the trees stand still and thats exactly the kind of town it was trees had no reason to move since there was no wind to sway their leaves music didnt exist either since birds didnt sing no one had been given the idea to make music the only noise heard was the ruckus the animals made each time they saw a bird why because birds were the ugliest animals in this place where the trees stood still

this book is based on a story told by mary albert of the bardi people to aboriginal children living in broome western australia the illustrations are adapted from their paintings of the story mary albert said would you like to hear a story from long ago my mother used to tell me lots of stories but this story i loved the best because i loved the birds having taken great risks to immigrate to america to take monastic vows bengali physician meena chatterjee and brother flavian are each seeking safety and security when they encounter johnny faye a vietnam vet free spirit and expert marijuana farmer amid the fields and forests of a trappist monastery johnny faye patiently cultivates meena s and flavian s capacity for faith transforming all they thought they knew about duty and desire in turn they offer him an experience of civilization other than war and chaos but johnny faye s law breaking sets him against a district attorney for whom the law is a tool for ambition rather than justice their confrontation leads to a harrowing reckoning that ensnares dr chatterjee and brother flavian who must make a life or death choice between an act of justice that may precipitate their ruin or a betrayal that offers salvation inspired by the real life state police kidnapping and murder of a legendary storyteller and petty criminal the man who loved birds engages pressing contemporary issues through a timeless narrative of ill fated romance celebrated author fenton johnson has woven a seamless haunting fable exploring the eternal conflicts between free will and destiny politics and nature the power of law and the power of love
